Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 30 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mainly cloudy in east, clear or sunny spells in west.

This Evening and Tonight:
Plenty of evening sunshine, but mist, fog and low cloud returning to coastal areas after dusk. This affecting some inland areas overnight, but not as extensive as last night. Most parts dry but coastal drizzle is likely towards dawn. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Thursday:
Often cloudy in coastal areas, perhaps lingering for much of the day, with the odd spot of drizzle possible. Further west brighter conditions with some sunny spells. Showers possible later. Maximum temperature 19 deg C (66 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Mainly dry Friday, with sunny spells. Showers possible Saturday, these perhaps heavy. Often warm by day inland, but fresher and cloudier towards the coast. Widespread heavy perhaps thundery showers Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.